

Lindsey Kelly - Murton
Single Mum & Customer Services Advisor

I was previously working in a call centre as a customer services advisor and hated it, no-one cared about you as an individual, and it was difficult to fit around my one year old son.

When he was poorly they wouldn't give me time off so I left I'd had enough!

Now, it's great being my own boss and not having to answer to anyone. I have the freedom to work around my son and with my Working Tax Credit I'm much better off. This is my income now which is much better than the £6.50 an hour I used to earn.

My income has now exceeded my call centre wages by over £275 per month.

It's been well worth the small investment of time and effort in mine and my son's future!
